In The Pajama Game, a union strike at a pajama factory generates plenty of steam heat in this toe-tapping, comedic love story. Romance is blossoming at the Sleep-Tite Pajama Factory in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. That is, until Sleep-Tite employees are refused a 7½ cent raise, and workers find themselves on either side of the union strike.

Based on Richard Bissel's novel, 7½ Cents, The Pajama Game portrays the ups and downs of romance, with the added heat of politics making the temperature extra hot. First staged in 1954 and made into a major motion picture with Doris Day in 1957, The Pajama Game features hit songs including "Hey There," "Hernando's Hideaway," and "Steam Heat" which have also become pop standards that climbed as high as number one in the U.S. charts. In 2006, the Broadway revival with Harry Connick Jr. won the Tony Award for Best Revival of a Musical, a testament to the fact that love, music, and politics are as hot as they ever were.

"It's been a joy to revive this golden age classic in a modern era. The Pajama Game is a true celebration of musical comedy. Set in a pajama factory in the 1950's, the rhythm of the factory work plus the iconic music by Richard Adler and Jerry Ross create a fast-paced, infectious production. And the topics introduced in the story hold up surprisingly well today — women holding their own in the workplace, safe and sustainable working conditions, and the complications of workplace relationships. Who knew a 1950's musical comedy could be so relevant?! The workers must all take a stand and fight for what they deserve. And, as with every great musical comedy, there are mishaps in love and friendship as well. Come join the pajama party starting March 9!" -Lauren Leong, Director
